To whom it may concern,

David Mitchell has provided IT support for my business for several years now. He provides an outstanding level of service and professionalism. His knowledge and ability to overcome any of my company's technical problems in a timely manner is outstanding. Far better than any IT support organisations I have previously dealt with.

David is available at any time and always brings peace of mind by solving all technical issues. He has a high level of service and is very understanding and willing to share his knowledge to help solve problems. He fixes your problem while educating you on how to prevent the problem reoccurring.

Beyond his effective problem solving abilities I have learned so much from our interactions. His advice has saved my company significant time and money. He built my website, set up and supported all my computers, printers etc. and provided advice on IT equipment best suited to my business.

I would gladly recommend David to anyone requiring effective IT support.
